FIRE DARKENED BROADWAY.

DESTROYED STANFORD WHITE'S COLLECTION OF ANTIQUES.

Began Just Before the Matinees Near By, Kept Fourteen Engines Busy Flooding a Big Factory Building. Filled the Streets With Still More Slush and Ice.

Stanford White, designer of the Washington Arch, lost an extremely valuable collection of art and antique objects yesterday by a fire which gutted the six story iron and brick building at 114 to 120 West Thirtieth street. Mr. White was so cut up shout his loss that he refused to discuss it except with his personal friends, but said that he valued it at fully $200,000 in money. There is not nearly that much insurance on it. He will make an examination to-day of the wreckage to see if anything is worth

Mr. White is a buyer at important art sales, and probably does not know the exact number of objects in his collection. The collection was stored on the top floor. Douglas Robinson, brother-in-law of President Roosevelt, is the agent of the building. and Mr. White hired the premises from him some months ago. A good deal of the collection came from Mr. White's old home in Washington Square. At present Mr. White makes his home with his business partner, Charles McKim, at 9 East Thirtyfifth street. He heard of the fire, looked at the building, and then went to the Brook Club. Thomas B. Clarke said of Mr.

I know he had an extremely valuable collection of pottery, carved wood, bric-àbrae and tapestry, all of the fifteenth, sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. It takes a great deal of research, a great deal of time and much money to make a genuine collection of this kind, and I am sure the loss will be heavy. The tapestries were of Italian and Spanish workmanship, and in addition there was considerable statsary. I wouldn't attempt to put a monetary value on the collection, for it has taken years to gather.'

the loss suffered by Mr. White, the fire did $100,000 damage to the building and the possessions of other tenants. Fourteen engines pumped water into the building for two hours. The south and east walls were so weakened that they were

A truckman discovered the fire about 2 o'clock and, rang the alarm himself. Battalion Chief Binns came with the first hree engines. Smoke and flame was then pouring out of the front windows then pouring out of the front windows on the fourth floor. The big building is on the south side of Thirtieth street, and adjoining it on the west is Public School 28, which was empty because of the holiday. To the east are two tenement houses occupied by negroes. Half way down the block, on the other side of the street is the

a printer, on the fourth floor, that the fire started. Ten or twelve men at work there got out safely. A half dozen men at work on the ground floor also got out. Several hundred men and women would have been in the place on a business day.

Thirtieth street from Sixth to Seventh avenue has big piles of snow on either side of the roadway, and the nearest an engine could get to the fire was Sixth avenue. Chief Croker said that the condition of the street was shameful, and that the snowpiles kept the engines from getting near the hydrants on the block. He ran the water tower in front of the burning building and two fire engines in Sixth avenue supplied it with water.

Something in the building threw out a mighty black smoke, which with the smoke from the engines settled down to the street level. This was so dense on Broadway and Fifth avenue from Twenty-fifth street. Then they suddenly darkened in the darkened territory the fire goers knew there was a fire before they went in. The theatres near the burning building closed their doors and windows against the dense smoke, but not quickly enough in some cases. Proctor's Fifth Avenue and Weber's Music Hall were smoke, but the people knew where the smoke came from hasmuch as the audience at the Proctor house was changing continually several announcements were Herbert Gladstone's Statement to the continually several announcements were made from the stage as to the progress of the fire and just where it was.

When it looked as if the fire might spread out. So much water had been poured into the building by this time that it was falling from floors and stairways like a freshet. The street was ankle deep in water and slush, and the spray from the many lines of hose didn't add to the comfort of any one who had to be near. The police chair. them out. A white man and a big yellow haired women were found in one negro apartment. The man insisted that there was no danger and that he would not leave. He was carried out and dumped in the snow. Amid the jeers of the crowd the yellow haired woman ran out of the house and never stopped running until she turned the corner of Sixth avenue.

Two hours and a half after he arrived Chief Croker was able to get into the building to look at the inside. He found that the sixth and fifth floors had dropped to the fourth and discovered pieces of statuary and other unlooked for articles mixed up with piles of sterotype plates and bent and broken printing presses. Croker wondered then what statuary was doing in such a building and it wasn't until some in such a building and it wasn't until some time later that he found out.

One result of the fire will be that the Theatre Magazine will probably lose this month's edition. Kenworthy was print-ing it when the fire started. Kenworthy says he carries $30,000 insurance and that his loss will be fully that amount. The second and third floors are occupied by the Rooney and Otten Company, printers, damage mostly by water. The fifth floor, occupied by the Hopkins Company, lithographers, was burned out. The Schlenoff Wagon Building Company occupied one part of the ground floor, and the Newman Art Company the rest of the floor. The loss of the latter concern will be large, for water souked all the picture material. water soaked all the picture material. The building is owned by the Paul Tucker-man estate and is insured.

JANITOR FOUND IN FLAT AFTER WOMAN WENT TO HOSPITAL.

He's Arrested in Rooms in Which $6,000 Was Hidden-She Is Mrs. Marie Kull, Who Also Had Money in Bank and Owned Real Estate Valued at $60,000.

Mrs. Marie Kull, 73 years old, who lived alone in a dingy, poorly furnished, three room flat on the ground floor of the tenement house at 743 Third avenue, was taken to Flower Hospital yesterday afternoon, suffering from chronic gastritis. In the illsilver and bills, besides bank books showing deposits to the woman's credit amounting to $18,000. It was learned also that she owned, not only the tenement house in which she lived, valued at $35,000, but other property of a similar sort in First avenue,

The police, who were called in to take charge of the woman's rooms after she had been removed to the hopital, found Herman Weber, the janitor, in the flat, and arrested him on the charge of intoxication. It was known in the tenement house before the police arrived that money had been found in the woman's flat. Mrs. Kull was found lying on an old motheaten sofa by her niece, Miss Susan Mang of 1448 Prospect avenue, The Bronx. Miss Mang made it a practice of calling on her aunt once or twice a week. She says her aunt is eccentric and none of her relatives know anything about her private affairs. Some of them know that of her relatives know anything about her private affairs. Some of them know that her husband, Jacob Kull, who was a director in a West Side bank, had left her some money when he died, but they did not know what she had done with it.

Mrs. Kull was in great pain when her nice found her. An ambulance from the hospital was summoned, but when the surgeon came Mrs. Kull refused to leave the sofa. The surgeon was about to get

When Croker got there the rear of the big building had broken out in flames. The sparks and the smoke drove the women out of several disorderly houses in Twenty-ninth street and the firemen ordered the respectable tenants of other houses back of the burning building out for safety. Fifty policemen were called to maintain the fire lines. OBITUARY.

Peter Roosevelt Johnson, M.D., died at his home at Sag Harbor, L.I., yesterday in his 77th year. He had not practised medicine for several years, but had interested himself in the study of Oriental religions. He owned large business property in Brooklyn, being a member of the corporation known as the "Johnson Estate" Dr. Johnson was a graduate of Columbia and of the College of Physicians and Surgeons in this city. He was one of a party of young adventurers who in 1849 purchased a brig and salled around Cape Horn to California in search of gold. The brig was wrecked and the party was stranded at Rio Janeiro for a long time. Dr. Johnson had travelled extensively in Europe and lived for a time in Algiers. He married Miss Mary C. Hunt, a daughter of Col. Alexander Hunt of Sag Harbor. His wife, two sons and five daughters survive him. The elder son, Roosevelt, is secretary of a realty syndicate in San Francisco, and the other, William C., is manager in New York city for the Phænix Mutual Life Insurance Company of Hartford. Dr. Johnson's father was the late Rev. Samuel Roosevelt Johnson, D. D., for several years a professor in the General Theological Seminary.

A Long Lost Bull Terrier Claimed-Boston Terrier Club Clashes With the American Kennel Solons-Homebred Canines Prominent in Many of the Classes.

An identification of a lost or stolen dog with Jim Robinson, the Princeton trainer, speeding to the city to do a Sherlock Holmes act; a conflict on rights and privileges between the American Kennel Club and the Boston Terrier Club, and the mishaps or good fortune to befall the American-bred can-didates in the various classes, were side topics yesterday at the opening of the Westminster Kennel Club bench show in Madison Square Garden. The stormy weather did not keep away the holiday seekers in the morning, and the visitors increased in number as the day brightened out-o'-doors.

There was the usual club luncheon for the members and judges, but with no set speeches. The visitors during the day and evening included many leaders in the "doggy" set of fashionables, famed for the kennels at their country houses and for the champions they have bred or imported. Only George Raper, who worked bareheaded to gain extra speed, had finished his stunt by dinner time and some of the judges were at their task under the electric light. Russian wolfhounds had to go over, save for minor classes, and Joseph B. Thomas, Jr., in a sporty red wajstcoat, could only show a few of his new importations. The Irish and Scotch terriers, beagles, black and tan, whippets and dachshunds, are this time up aloft on the Twenty-seventh street side and the toys, with the wire and smooth fox terriers on the Twenty-sixth street gallery. ADMITS HE IS S. V. GRANGER. Married a Brooklyn Girl in England Under A Man of Many Occupations Disappears the Name of Wood.

The attractive and well spoken Seymour mour V. Wood married Miss Ethel Morley of Brooklyn in England in 1904, and who when arrested by the police some weeks ago declared that he was not Granger, has admitted that he is the man. He is awaiting the action of the Grand Jury on three charges of obtaining money and goods under false pretences. His wife tried to obtain a divorce from him in the Supreme Court in Brooklyn, but failed.

Granger asserted yesterday that he has never been married to any one but Miss Morley. He says that although there is an estrangement between them, he has faith that she will return to him. He says that drink was the cause of his marrying under an assumed name; that he was drinking heavily at the time and was irresponsible.
